

Mini assignment 2008

Evaluating eLand administration

Each student will assess an aspect of existing Australian systems in eLand administration. The table below identifies some possible tasks. However electronic support systems are up-dated constantly. The final version of tasks will be set in April and will include any new Australian initiatives in national eConveyancing, ePlans and electronic banking. Students involved with each state will present the benefits of and challenges for their state's eLand administration.

Mini Assignment Tasks Land Administration 2008
State	Task	Student Name
Victoria	Assess access to land registry standard forms
	Assess access to sale price and valuation information
	Assess ability to search titles by name of owners
	Evaluate customer service level
	Evaluate the role of the electronic services in NECS
	Identify an Australian site that Victoria could use as a model to upgrade existing services
NSW	Assess access to land registry standard forms
	Assess access to sale price and valuation information
	Assess ability to search titles by name of owners
	Evaluate customer service level
	Evaluate the role of the electronic services in NECS
	Identify an Australian site that NSW could use as a model to upgrade existing services
WA	Assess access to land registry standard forms
	Assess access to sale price and valuation information
	Assess ability to search titles by name of owners
	Evaluate customer service level
	Evaluate the role of the electronic services in NECS
	Assess access to land registry standard forms
	Identify an Australian site that WA could use as a model to upgrade existing services

NECS is the National Electronic Conveyancing System.